

Highlights

- We present a bibliometric analysis based on over 2000 curated publications
- We apply network theory and are not limited by pre-selected research themes
- We show an inflection point in publications after a decade of exponential growth
- We show concentration of research among few authors, institutions, and countries.
- We identify key rising thematic areas (e.g. AI) and declining ones (e.g. marketing)